WINTER
1930-31

He puts it up to the TELEPHONE

This man is meeting business readjustments in the new-day way.

He's constantly in touch with people and markets that affect his business—knows of changing situations at once—is ready to make the next move a little bit quicker than his competitor.

He lets the telephone take the heavy end of the job. Instead of waiting for decisions from out-of-town customers—he telephones. Deals ten or a thousand miles away which might otherwise be lost are quickly closed. Good-will cemented. Overnight trips eliminated. Ticklish adjustments handled without misunderstanding. He brings his business world to his desk by telephone.

When you find your desk piling up with out-of-town matters that need closing, pick up your telephone. You will find real satisfaction in coping with business problems in the most direct, practical way known.
